Human Subjects Protections Training Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative – CITI

Logging into your CITI account

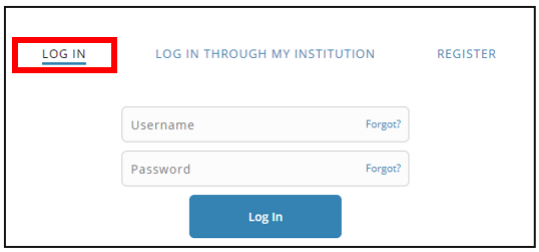

1. Go to the [CITI training website.]

2. Click on the “Log In” button located on the top right of the page.

3. Then, using “LOG IN” enter your credentials or “Forgot” to retrieve your username or password.

   *Note: NASA does not currently employ SSO functionality for CITI

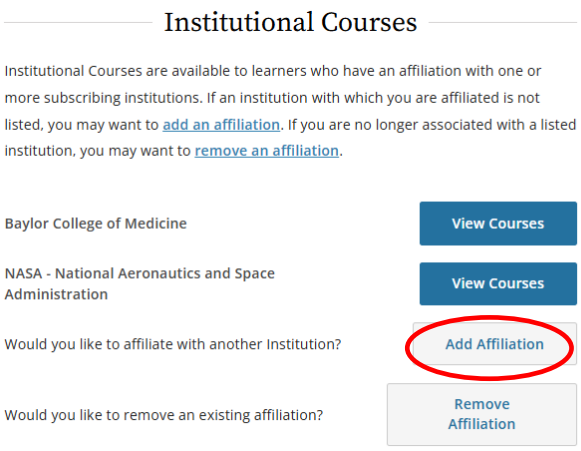

Following a successful log on, you will be on the “Institutional Courses” page. On this page you will see institutions with which you are affiliated (i.e. NASA).

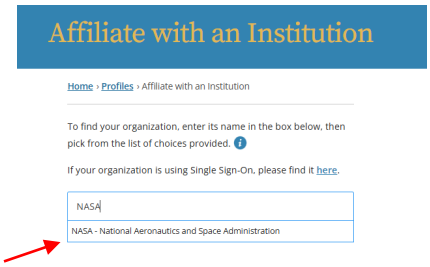

Transferring CITI training credit from another institution

If you have already registered with CITI at another institution, you may transfer credit for your CITI Human Subjects Protection training records by completing the following steps:

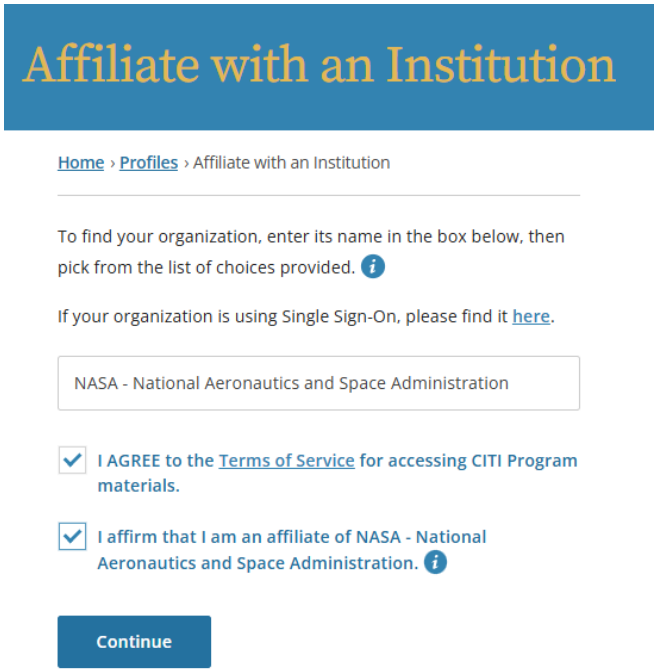

1. Access your CITI account and click on the “Add Affiliation” box.

2. Type “NASA” and Choose NASA from the drop-down menu.

3. You must agree to the Terms of Service and Privacy Policy and affirm you are an affiliate of NASA to continue. (Note: “affiliate of NASA” in this context includes serving as research personnel on a project submitted to the NASA IRB).

a. When prompted, choose the human subjects research course completed at the other institution.

b. Click on “My Profiles” at the top of the page and select “Change my email address.” If you have a NASA issued email address, please update your primary email to this address or add the email you use for your eIRB account as a secondary address.

c. Follow instructions to “Add a Course” to add the appropriate NASA Human Subjects Protection Basic Course (Biomedical or Social/Behavioral).

d. Once you have added the NASA course, the modules will autofill those common to the NASA curriculum.
